

Blizzards in Dist. First of Week

Commencing Sunday morning, a heavy rain has fallen almost continuously over the district, to a depth of approximately four inches on level ground. A strong wind accompanied the storm on Monday, chilling the atmosphere to great extent.

Temperatures are reported to have dropped to 14 degrees below zero. Fortunately, no wind accompanied the cold.

low temperature. It is understood that several farmers in districts nearby have not completed their harvesting as yet. In view of a spell of mild weather, it will take considerable time for the storing or stockpiling of grain to dry out sufficiently to permit a continuation of harvest operations.

The main highway to Calgary totally blocked the first part of the week, and up to the present time traffic has been able to get through only up to Wednesday night, bus service being suspended.

Due to poor road conditions and inclement weather, the annual Chicken Supper sponsored by the Ladies Aid of Knox Presbyterian Church has been postponed one week, till this day evening, November 2nd.

This event has always proved a popular affair with Bassano and district citizens, and should be no exception this year. The women are much time, and present a delicious supper of chicken, mashed potato, gravy, vegetables, and all the relishes to go with them to make an appetizing meal.

The Aid has done excellent Christmas work to date, and with added funds will be able to continue. The price of the meal is inexpensive, so should make an earnest attempt to be present.

CONFIRMATION SERVICES
WELL ATTENDED SUNDAY

Rev. Ralph L. Sherman, Bishop of the Calgary Diocese of the Anglican Church, addressed the local congregation last Sunday, at a Confirmation Service, which was very well attended. The occasion was the confirmation of two local young people, Miss Virginia Bacon, and Mr. Robert Edwards. In his address, the Bishop stressed ed the importance of evening prayer, conducted by the members of the parish themselves. The motto of the British army will only be as strong as the prayers of those people who are left at home," he said. "I return to God," he explained, "is the only logical and sane way, for civilization to be taken from the grip of war."

Incumbent, Rev. J. H. Naylor also in the service.
Members of the Knox Presbyterian Church choir supplemented the

Applause from Grandstand

IN SPITE OF Lindbergh's pro-German outbursts in recent radio addresses the feeling in the United States is predominantly in favor of the Allies.

Newspaper editorials and the addresses of such prominent men as Robert Taft and ex-president Hoover reveal in no evasive language a strong conviction that Great Britain and France are on the right track. None of these speakers or the principals of the newspapers has been decorated with the Victoria Cross, the Legion of Honor, or been a ally by the allies in the way that Lindbergh has been Germanized.

Even those people in the United States who make a loud noise about the imperative need for their country to keep out of the war, no doubt cherish a profound dislike for Hitler. "The New Yorker" recently described it thus:

"On the question of staying out of the war, the ayes have it by a landslide. Our people want him soundly beaten by a couple of other fellows."

Canadian Dollar Barred

THE FUTURE OF Canada and the British Empire financially at least, must be headed for the place where Father Time dumps forgotten and unwanted goods and chattels, if one would take his view from the current evaluation of the Canadian Dollar in the United States of America.

A United States bank in Seattle the other day refused to cash a Dominion Government pension cheque for a regular customer, while in the neighboring town of Bellingham, which has for years thrived on profits on Canadian dollars spent there by British Columbians, there are signs on cash registers warning Canadians that their money is not acceptable in that great democracy.

Seems that the freedom-loving people of the United States are quite sure that the arch-enemy of freedom, one Hitler, is about to gobble up Canadians in which event the Canadian dollar would be replaced by the German mark, of which the United States had a few trainloads following purchase on the bargain counter after winning the last war.

Should Canada be "marked" by Mr. Hitler, we wonder how the almighty American dollar will fare on the other side of that popular subject of after-dinner speeches, the imaginary line that separates the two great and free democracies of North America.

Is it possible that Canadian resources from mine, field and factory are actually of less value today than they were a few weeks ago?

Has the Canadian, many of whom are former Americans, his product and his dollar lessened in value or become worthless to his American friend and brother in freedom and fraternity, since he (the Canadian) chose to fight for the maintenance of that freedom of which so much is heard on sundry occasions?

Are our American money friends really afraid that they will be caught short with Canadian dollars after Hitler comes to Canada, or is it that the world's money system is just plain cockeyed?

In any event, Canadian dollars are still good in Canada, and this country is as good a place to spend them as any piece of geography on the globe.—Chilliwack Progress.

Exempt from Income Tax

AT THE Recent emergency meeting of Parliament the Income War Tax Act was amended so to provide that donations to patriotic funds shall be exempt from tax up to fifty per cent of the net taxable income of any taxpayer, provided such money is paid to an approved patriotic organization. The Canadian Red Cross Society of Canada made application for and has just received Government approval as an organization entitled to come within the provisions of this amendment.

Prospective contributors to the wartime funds of the Society during its November campaign should hold receipts for their donations, to be used in making out their 1939 Income Tax Returns.

While most people are well acquainted with the peace time work of the Red Cross Society, but few have been aware of the fact that in wartime the Society is by law an auxiliary of the Canadian Army Medical Corps. As such it is obligated to meet such demands as the officers of the Army Medical Corps may make upon it. In the 1914-1918 war these demands were heavy and could not have been met had it not been for the generous support given by Canadian citizens in cash donations to the Society's funds and in work services rendered. It is to meet the war that the campaign for funds and organization for wartime work is being undertaken. Already demands for wartime supplies have been received and the work of preparation is in progress.

During the war of 1914-18 there were 232 Red Cross Branches in active operation in the Alberta Division of the Society. Organization for active operation in the new 1939 wartime is progressing rapidly and with surprisingly satisfactory results. In the southern part of the province alone there are now 216 branches organized, with new ones being reported daily. Reports from Edmonton, from which city the north part of the province is being organized indicate that Alberta Red Cross organization in the new war will practically double that of the 1914-18 war.

After the war — What?

ONE PROPOSAL emanating from the Canadian Government will have general backing from the public. This is that youths, between the ages of 18 and 21 years of age who have enlisted, should have definite assurance of future employment after their discharge. It was also asked that all enlisted persons should have guarantee of re-establishment after the war.

Although as yet the enlisted forces of Canada have got no farther than their district drilling centres it is none too soon to plan for later absorption of these soldiers in civilian life. Those who have in left settled intention to join the army have in most instances been assured of their old employment if they return. This of course, must carry the condition that they be physically and mentally fit for the job when they return. But there are many in the ranks of the enlisted, who have had no regular employment. They have hammered at the doors of industry in vain, and have turned to the army. This has not been compulsory. They could still have sought, and probably secured, relief, but they chose to enlist in the service of their country. Are they to return after the war is over, to the indifference of the past, or are they to be rewarded on their return, by real jobs and the privileges of work? This applies also to the youths of 18 to 21, who may have had no specialized training nor employment to date. Will they be met by slammed doors and gruff refusals when they come back to the world of normal employment.

One of the saddest results of the last war has been the number of old soldiers tramping the country, selling shoe laces, begging alms on the strength of being soldiers. It is to be hoped this condition is never to be repeated. It may be that these men are totally unfit for employment or are unable to hold their own in any competitive field. But if so they should be provided for by the government and not left to the mercy of the public.

At this early stage it should be made clear beyond doubt, that soldiers of the present war who return in normal health will have security of work immediately upon discharge. Those who are unfit should at once be a charge on the state and be supported by the state.—Vulcan Advocate.

Our great problem is to fill each day so full of sunshine, of plain living and high thinking, that there can be no commonness or unhappiness in our lives.—Orison Marden.

The Poet's Corner

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest.

Ever and ever the day returns
And tawdry the tasks are seeming,
Nor duller nor brighter the forge fire burns,
Nor changes my age old dreaming.
Life must be lived to the last pale minute
And who can tell me the secret in it.

Ever and ever I face the day
An intangible hope pursuing,
Planning and toiling as best I may
And bound to the task I'm doing,
Yet rises the dream that my life shall be
Fit for the eyes of all men to see.

I have been granted a measure of time,
How much or how little I know not,
Yet I must get out of the mud and the slime
And the places where mortals grow not.
By a stronger force than a sense of duty
I am upwards urged to the things of beauty.

Ever and ever in spite of despair
And the shackles which bind and fetter,
I set my face to the wings of care
And struggle for something better,
Troubled and puzzled my life's strange plan,
Yet constantly driven to play the man.

The Week

In Edmonton —

(By Dan Campbell)

Live stock marketings in Alberta for the first seven months of 1939 show a slight increase over the same period of the previous year, according to an industrial summary which has been released by the Department of Trade and Industry. Through yards, plains and direct export channels the 1939 total direct export of animals compared with 1938 was 744,634 compared with 738,989 in 1938.

The summary discloses that Alberta has 1,000 more head growers this year, a slightly higher figure than in the previous two years. Total value of the crop growers is estimated at $1,215,000. By-products in the form of pulp and baltassales, were contributory factors in the building up of total revenues.

Alberta's newest industry received important recognition recently, when an order for 10,000 army blankets was placed by the Dominion government with the Magrath woolen mills. Government of the province assisted in the purchase of raw wool just prior to the deep rise thus enabling the factory to carry out the order.

Alberta's school book shortage, reportedly caused by the striking of the Alberta by Nazi unseaboarders, is now being relieved, according to Dr. F. McCall, deputy minister of Education. Ordered through a Toronto house, the volumes missing—two French texts and one reference—have now come on the way, and classes delivered will be able to proceed with their studies.

Mailing of a directory of Alberta manufacturers by the Provincial Marketing Board has been completed, according to George A. Clab, chairman. Listing names, addresses and products of Alberta manufacturers, the directory was enclosed with a form of the agreement, which they are being asked to sign. At a later date the directory will be revised, when co-operating will be entitled to use the Provincial Trade Mark. Ten thousand copies will then be mailed to retailers of Alberta.

Youth training centres will be operated at 30 to 35 points throughout the province, according to details of the Dominion-Provincial plan just released. First schools will open Nov. 6th. Courses for boys, girls and for both boys and girls will be available. They include workshop, farm, home and citizenship classes. Eligible age range from 13 to 20. Last year 7,000 young people attended 27 centres.

A salary advance of one month's pay to married civil servants who enlist in the Canadian Active Forces will be granted by the provincial government, according to notice received by the A.C.A. Single men will receive two weeks pay. Positions are guaranteed on return. Seniority rights are respected. Negotiations between the association and the government with a view to the province keeping up superannuation payments are proceed ing.

Troops of the Edmonton garrison now have a brand new dry canteen and recreation hut, as a result of the Salvation Army's efforts in this direction. Costing $4,000, the canteen promises to become a popular rendezvous for the troops while the garrison remains at strength.
